

1. (A) Bannack is in southwest Montana. (pg.102)
(B) Gold Creek is in Deer Lodge Valley. (pg.102)
(C) Alder Gulch is in the Yellowstone region. (pg.103)
(D) Last Chance Gulch is in Four Georgians. (pg.103)
 2. (A) John White was a prospector. (pg.102)
(B) Benetsee (his Métis name was François Finlay) was a fur trapper. (pg.102)
(C) Bill Fairweather was a prospector that found a scad of gold.(pg.103)
(D) Henry Plummer was a sheriff in bannack.(pg.111)
(E) Bill farlin was a miner.(pg.117)
(F) Charles McClure was a foreman at the Hope Mine at Philipsburg.(pg.118)
(G) Sidney Edgerton was a respected lawyer.
 3. (A) boom-and bust cycle is where each gold discovery brought sudden activity followed by decline, then a of quiet, and then a sudden burst of activity again in another location.(pg.101)
(B) Placer mining is when separating loose gold and nuggets from dirt, sand, and gravel in a creek bed.(pg.104)
(C) hydraulic mining is where you use pressurized water to cut into a hillside to wash dirt and gravel down into a sluice box.(pg.120)
(D) Quartz mining was hard-rock mining that required very expensive equipment.(pg.116)
(E) vigilantes are people keeping a careful watch.(pg.112)
(F) assayers are people who determined the value or quality of gold.(pg.106)
 4. The three major gold strikes in Montana were the Alder Strike, Last Chance Gulch, and Gold Creek.(pg.102, 103, 103)
 5. The four overland routes in Montana are Mullan Road, Corrine Road, Bozeman Trail, and Northern Overland Route.
 6. A mining town has people that are always moving and are looking for gold. There jobs are going out to the mines and mining.
 7. Vigilance Committees were formed so private citizens could administer law.
 8. President Lincoln wanted to control the West because he saw great value in it.
 9. The methods of mining changed because they hadn't been working and they found a more efficient method.
-

1. People who came for fur trading are different from the people who wanted gold because they were dressed differently, had different gear, and had different goals.
2. They are different because they have different outcomes, they are the same because they have the same method.
3. They adapted by having horses to travel more.
4. The factors they would have is they would leave their home and family and that it's dangerous.
5. It would be different because they spoke different languages and had different belief systems.
6. I believe these groups were a good idea because they didn't have a law enforcement system until the vigilante communities.

-
1. People move to Montana because of the environment, the scenery, and the workplace.
 2. Gold is a very precious metal, but I don't believe it is to be used as currency or to be chased after like it was during the Gold Rush.

-
1. None of our local towns began during the Gold Rush. But, we do have a ghost town, Bannack, that was abandoned during the Rush.